

A PULPIT SENSATION.

Archbishop Ireland's Action De-nounced by Bishop McQuaid.

ECHO FROM THE CAMPAIGN.

The Archbishop Severely Criticised For His Appearance In New York at a Critical Time, the Conduct Being Classified as Undignified and a Disgrace to His Office—Quotations From the Sermon.

ROCHESTER, Nov. 26.—Bishop McQuaid at the Roman Catholic cathedral in this city preached a sensational sermon yesterday in which he denounced the action of Archbishop Ireland in coming to this state and taking part in the last political campaign. In his sermon Bishop McQuaid said that in his 47 years of priesthood he had never put himself under obligations to any political party, and for 27 years he has never cast a vote out of anxiety not to be put in any man's political power to say that he had voted for one party or the other. Following is an extract of the sermon:

"Having said this much by way of preface, I will now advert to the late scandal which caused these remarks. Every Catholic having respect for his bishops and priests, and the honor and good name of his church, must have been named and mortified when he learned during the late political campaign that one of our bishops, the archbishop of St. Paul, cast to one side the traditions of the past and entered the political arena like any layman. The newspapers were careful to keep the public duly informed of his arrival in New York weeks before election, of his appearance on the platform at ratification meetings surrounded by the leaders of the Republican party, of his views on political questions, strongly expressed through interviews carefully prepared for the press, and of his mingling in a crowd of excited politicians and partisans on the night of the election.

Scandal in the Eyes of Catholics.

"I contend that this coming to New York of the archbishop to take part in a political contest was undignified, disgraceful to his episcopal office and a scandal in the eyes of all right minded Catholics of both parties. It was, furthermore, a piece of meddlesome interference on his part to come from his state to another, break down all discipline among our priests and justify the charges of those inimical to us that priests are partisans and use the offices and opportunities for political work.

"If Archbishop Ireland had made himself as conspicuous in favor of the Democratic party he would be just as blameworthy, in my estimation. If his conduct in this last political campaign were not censured and condemned it would be impossible for me to restrain the priests of this diocese from imitating his example and descending from the pulpit to the political platform and marching their parishioners up to the polls on the day of election. Not one of them but has an equal right with his grace of St. Paul to turn elector, agent for one party or another and absent himself from his parish as his archbishop absent himself from his diocese."

SIX DAYS OVERDUE.

Anxiety as to the Fate of the American Liner Indiana.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 26.—The American liner Indiana, Captain Townsend, from Liverpool and Queenstown for this port with a crew of 60 men and 140 steerage passengers, has not yet turned up and is now almost six days overdue.

The uneasiness felt for the ship was in no way lessened by a report made by Captain Hunter of the British steamship Calvin, which reached Girard point yesterday. Captain Hunter says that on the 20th inst., while weathering a terrific gale, they observed on the crest of a wave a peculiar white object which closer observation disclosed to be the part of a passenger vessel's life raft. It was painted snow white and the figure "2" was plainly visible on one end. On the other side, which was partially submerged, were letters, no doubt the name of the ship from which it had come. Captain Hunter is confident that it came from a passenger ship that had met with recent disaster.

Pilot Schellinger, who was in charge of the Calvin, says that the raft described closely resembles those carried by the American line boats. Close to the raft was floating a wooden bucket. The Calvin met with terrific gales from the 15th to 20th inst. and damaged her steam steering gear.

The Red Star steamer Pennsylvania and the British steamship Robinia are also overdue.

GENERAL FRY'S NEW WORK.

Late Industrial Army Leader Lecturing For a New Religious Sect.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 26.—A new church has been organized in St. Louis, modeled after one of the same name in Los Angeles, which, organized two years ago by a small band, has grown to a membership of 10,000. Belief in a deity, in the divinity of Christ or in a future state is not required. The new church proposes to concern itself as well with the secular and moral as the spiritual interests of the people, to which end it has committees on the condition and needs of the unemployed and unfortunate, on the condition and management of jails, police courts, poor-houses, hospitals, asylums and other municipal institutions, and for other purposes of the elevation of the people. The present lecturer is Lewis C. Fry, late general of the industrial army.

LOOTED THE BANK.

Bookkeeper and Depositor Succeeded In Stealing Over $300,000.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—It was made public Saturday for the first time that there had been a defalcation of $354,000 from the Shoe and Leather bank at Broadway and Chambers street. The operators of this enormous steal were two in number. One was the bank's bookkeeper, who had been a trusted employee for 14 years. He is Samuel C. Seely, aged 45, of 422 Halsey street, Brooklyn. The method adopted to accomplish the theft was explained by Assistant District Attorney Davis, to whom the case had been reported, as follows:

With the bookkeeper, Samuel C. Seely, is implicated a depositor in the bank. Seely would place false credits on the ledger to the depositor's account, and then the latter would draw cash checks upon the false credits. It was impossible for the bank examiner to discover from the books the irregularities. It was a thing that could not be ascertained except by an examination of the deposit slips on the depositor's account. As a matter of fact, there were no slips to represent these alleged deposits. For 30 years the depositor had been a respected customer of the bank. Both men have been fugitives from justice since last Monday, and the police are hot after them. The bank officers entertain sanguine hopes of bringing either one or both to justice and recovering at least a part of the lost money. Seely lived in a quiet but comfortable way in his Brooklyn home with his wife and two children, to whom he was devoted.

A week ago last Saturday the bookkeeper had a holiday. On Monday he failed to appear, and another clerk was put in his place. This was the first indication given of anything wrong. His accounts were found to be mixed. The officers were notified and made an examination, and the further they dived into the books the worse they found them. Seely did not appear on Tuesday and a search was made for him. It was found that he had fled. Then Bank Examiner Kimball was called in and for two days he worked at the books. Saturday he finished his examination and reported to the bank officers and directors that Seely's stealings aggregated the startling sum of $354,000 and extended over a term of nine years. He reported also that a depositor had worked in collusion with the bank employee.

The bank officers have refused to give the name of the depositor, but it is said Seely claims it was Frederick R. Baker, a lawyer whose country house is at Kingsford Farm, Sands Point. Baker was found drowned on Flushing Bay Saturday afternoon before the story of the bank robbery became known. The cause was ascribed then to accident, but it is believed now to have been a case of suicide.

The Family of Baker assert that it is an outrage to associate his name with the thefts.

The bank's attorney says, however, that "the Baker who was drowned was the man for whom the officers were looking."

CROOK WITH "REV." ATTACHED.

Extensive Swindler Posing as Prohibition Orator Arrested in Michigan.

LANSING, Mich., Nov. 26.—Detective Saville of the Philadelphia Pinkerton force has made an important arrest here in the person of Robert E. Harvey, who posed as Rev. Charles O. Gibson and has conducted swindling operations under no less than 20 aliases in different sections. Under the name of H. D. Baker he bought a small fruit farm at Veland, N. J., where he took his wife a year ago and from which point he operated. He broke jail at Belair, Md., Oct. 7, where he was detained on two charges of forgery, securing $3,000 from the Hartford National bank of Belair by depositing a genuine draft for $1,100 and some forged drafts amounting in all to $8,000. The bank let him have $1,100 cash and cashiers checks on Philadelphia and Baltimore banks for $2,500. He has served time in prisons. He offered no resistance. He has a bad sore on his hand where he had attempted to remove a tattooed figure, but has the initials "R. H." upon his arm in ink ink. He is not known to have committed any depredations here, but assumed to be a prohibition orator and canvassed for advertisements in a religious hymn book.

STRUGGLE TO THE DEATH.

Horrible Accident on a Bridge by Which Three Church-Goers Were Terribly Mangled in Maryland—Drunk Iowa Farmer Fatally Shoots a Man. Other Crimes and Accidents.

MEMPHIS, Nov. 26.—A battle occurred at a church near Carrollton, Miss., yesterday between officers and a murderer, and as a result one man is dead and two others wounded.

Ben P. Chatham, marshal of Carrollton, and D. C. Brewer, a deputy sheriff, left for Enon church, 10 miles south of Carrollton, to arrest Claude Moss, who is charged with murder at Monticello, Drew county, Ark., and who had been a fugitive for more than a year. Governor Stone had honored a requisition and had ordered the sheriff to arrest Moss and deliver him to the Arkansas officials. The officers, learning that Moss, who had recently grown bold, would probably attend church, reached that point just as the minister was beginning services.

Moss and his companions were standing near the church when Chatham and Brewer approached. Moss threw his hand to his hipocket as if to draw his pistol, when Chatham grabbed his hand and Brewer also grabbed him. Moss, being a stout and powerful young man, resisted the officers, when both pulled their pistols. They scuffled with Moss until they reached the church door, 30 feet away, when Moss had succeeded in almost wrenching Brewer's pistol from his hand and fired it at Chatham, but Brewer knocked the pistol up and caught the bullet in his arm, inflicting a serious wound. Moss then rammed Brewer's pistol into Chatham's breast and pulled the trigger again and again, and pulled the trigger again and again, but Brewer's hand caught the hammer. By this time Chatham had freed his pistol and fired six bullets into Moss, killing him instantly. Intense excitement prevailed and scores of women fainted.

They were on their way to attend church at South Branch and when near the middle of the bridge were overtaken by a train. All three were hurled from the bridge, the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Taylor alighting on the bank of the stream, while that of Miss Kidwell landed in midstream and was recovered some distance below. All were dead when found and badly mangled. They were all prominent in that neighborhood.

The Chinese offered a very strong resistance until finally we seized the fort to the west of the cavalry and artillery parade grounds at 8:30 o'clock. We took the fort on Golden Hill at 4 o'clock in the afternoon of Nov. 22. All the other forts were taken. Over 200 Japanese officers and men were killed or wounded. The Chinese loss and the number of prisoners is still unknown, but it is estimated at 1,000. The spoils are abundant and include a specially large number of large guns and a quantity of ammunition. The Chinese garrison at the lowest estimate was 20,000 men."

HE'S FOR CIVIL SERVICE.

Postmaster General Bissell Wants Officials Removed From Politics.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Postmaster General Bissell in his annual report takes the position that the department should be put upon a self-sustaining basis. He thinks expensive experiments, like postal telegraph and free rural delivery, should be avoided and that the law as it relates to second class matter should be revised so as to yield a greater revenue from this source by withdrawing it from publications not entitled to it. He favors extending free delivery in cities that now enjoy it; would accord it to towns already entitled to it under the law, and favors quickening railroad transportation. On the question of civil service he says:

"If the system of civil service has produced such good results in the clerical force of the department, it is reasonable to inquire whether something like it could not be applied with advantage to the lower grades of postmasters. For more than one generation the American people have been trained to regard the post-office as inseparable from the varying fortunes of the two great political parties, and in some instances even as legitimately following the vicissitudes of mere factions within a party. This fallacy is to be deplored. The intelligence of our people has long outgrown the notion that any one political party enjoys a monopoly of administrative talent.

"The local postoffice is closely connected with the every day life of the people who patronize it, and nothing is further from the principles of home rule and majority rule than to force a change whatever. Yet this is what happens, and is bound to happen as long as the postoffices remain in the public mind (and hence in the practice of the government) associated with politics. The postal service must either be taken out of the political field altogether and surrounded with the same conditions which conduce to the health of a private business, or be divided for administrative purposes into two sections—the one political and the other nonpolitical—each under a separate head, so that the executive authority on the nonpolitical side shall not be required to give any of his thought to the improvement of the postal system."

PLEA FOR ARMENIA.

Thanksgiving Offerings of Small Sums Asked For the Suffering.

It can be mailed to either the Security bank, Minneapolis; Western National bank, New York city; Wells-Fargo company, San Francisco. "Send a card with your name and mention of amount to the secretary, Minneapolis, and he will keep it in the annals of our new life for a thousand years to come," is the way the appeal closes. It is pledged that the fund will be held inviolate to be used for two definite purposes: (1) To secure the protection of the Armenian people in Turkey from further outrages. (2) To promote the cause of establishing a righteous government in Armenia.

INDIANAPOLIS is to have a new daily paper with populist ideas.

THE selling cigarettes and tobacco to boys under sixteen years of age, in direct opposition to a law passed by our state legislature, approved February 9, 1893, is the subject of much interest at present. It would be well for druggists, grocers and confectioners to refresh their memories with the remembrance of the penalty attached to this misdemeanor, viz: no less than ten nor more than one hundred; imprisonment in the county jail not less than ten nor more than thirty days.

Messrs. George Lockwood and W. W. Woodring, of Peru, Ind., announce that they will begin the publication of a new daily paper about December 1st, to be called the Tribune. They were here last spring and talked of issuing a paper about August 1st, but later decided not to do so. In October the Martin Bros., of Shelbyville, Illinois, came here to start a daily and fixed November 17th as the date of publication. After making a careful canvass of the city, they abandoned the idea about ten days ago, after which Messrs. Lockwood and Woodring returned.—Terre Haute Gazette.

Beyond Comparison

Are the good qualities possessed by Hood's Sarsaparilla. Above all it purifies the blood, thus strengthening the nerves; it regulates the digestive organs, invigorates the kidneys and liver, tones and builds up the entire system, cures scrofula, dyspepsia, catarrh and rheumatism. Get Hood's and only Hood's.

College Avenue Precinct.

The pastor of the College Avenue M. E. church having appointed me to supervise the election on the 24th inst., take this method of giving the interested the official returns. Total number of votes cast, 104; for the change of second restrictive rule, 0; against, 104. If this vote to be anything of an indicator of the vote of the annual conferences in 1895, and of the general conference of 1896, the women will surely get in. Some of them say if they had a chance they would present propositions on which the masses were to vote in such a shape as not to muddle the brain of the voter, and so that if they wanted to vote yes they would not have to vote no, as I understand it, this vote of the layety has not much to do in settling the question, only as it serves as an educator in the agitation of the subject, and as an indicator to the conference as to the will of the layety, for unless three-fourths of the annual conferences and two-thirds of the general conference vote yes the second restrictive rule will not be changed, and will then be interpreted so as to include women among the layety of the church, which will entitle them to a seat in the general conference if elected.

FOR GORY GLORY.

The Crawfordsville High School Foot Ball Team not in it.

The Greencastle high school foot ball team went up to Crawfordsville on Saturday and swiped the earth with the puny Athens lads. The Crawfordsville Journal kept pace with the game for an hour or so and we give its comments. The result was 30 to 20 in favor of the Greencastle boys. Says the Journal:

The much talked of foot ball game between the high school teams of Crawfordsville and Greencastle is being waged this afternoon on Phillistine Field. The Greencastle team with about twenty followers, arrived this afternoon and were quartered at the Sherman house with all the honors of war. The men from Greencastle loomed up big and brawny as they tumbled off the train and three or four of them wore whiskers—rather unusual trappings for high school students. Their size caused the cold chills of apprehension to caper cheerlessly down the spines of the home team's friends, for it looked like sure slaughter. Quite a neat little crowd assembled on the field to witness the game and the Crawfordsville team's colors vied with those of Greencastle. The colors of the home team were pink and white while those of Greencastle were pink without the white. The teams lined up as follows:

| Greencastle. | Position.    | Cville.     |
|--------------|--------------|-------------|
| Lightner     | Center       | Maxwell     |
| Hughes       | Right guard  | R. Williams |
| Lane         | Left guard   | Sawright    |
| Barnaby      | Right tackle | Stafford    |
| Giddowell    | Left tackle  | A. McClain  |
| Donnohue     | Right end    | B. Youngman |
| Zink         | Left end     | W. Brewer   |
| Dornall      | Quarterback  | F. Shipp    |
| Kelley       | Right half   | C. Stroh    |
| Burlingame   | Left half    | O. Williams |
| Durham       | Full back    | Bob Hartman |

Horton was chosen to umpire while a Greencastle gentleman refereed. Greencastle kicked off and Crawfordsville taking the ball proceeded to carry it down the field by good gains. On the 30-yard line Stroh got the ball and made a fine run of twenty-five yards. Hartman was then pushed over the line for a touchdown and kicked goal.

Greencastle then kicked off and Wabash lost the ball on the first down on a fumble at the twenty-five yard line. Greencastle then rushed the ball over in short order by around the end plays. She failed to kick goal, however. Score, Crawfordsville 6, Greencastle 4.

Crawfordsville kicked off and Greencastle took the ball. After one down Kelley went round the end and ran about steen hundred yards for a touch down. Goal was kicked.

Crawfordsville kicked off and after a few downs Greencastle got the ball on a fumble. After a few downs Crawfordsville lost likewise on a fumble. Greencastle quickly lost on downs but as quickly regained it on a fumble.

At 3:45 Greencastle had carried the ball over for another touch down, but failed to kick. Score, G., 14; C., 6.

The game closed with Greencastle a decided victor.

A Shampooing Machine.

The queer looking machine in Kleinbub Bros' shop, under the personal supervision of Mr. E. William Bridges, engineer, is not a photographer's camera, as some believe, but is one of Voss' patent steam scalp and hair renovators. It's inventor claims for the machine that it will clean and dry the hair in shampooing much better and more rapidly than the old method. It will be advertised in these columns in a few days. It is quite a novelty.

Mixed.

Here is a good story which should be added to the long list of blunders made in the course of the church service. A young clergyman started a London east end congregation the other day by announcing, "Hymn fourteen and sevenpence halfpenny." In his nervousness he had confused the offertory total of the previous Sunday with the hymn figures.—London Globe.

After Pneumonia Catarrh, Abscesses, and Dyspepsia

Hood's Sarsaparilla Gave Robust Health and Strength.

Is a well known blacksmith of Trenton, N. J. He writes illustrating the great building up, blood purifying powers of Hood's Sarsaparilla after serious illness:

"G. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.: "I am pleased to make a statement of my experience with Hood's Sarsaparilla. I am a blacksmith and contracted a severe cold which developed into pneumonia. Before I got over the illness, two large abscesses gathered on my limbs. Different medicines failed to do me any good. Catarrh and dyspepsia

New Tariff and Income Tax Law.

The Gorman tariff law, passed recently by congress, has been republished by the Tribune in pamphlet form, 52 pages, giving the language of the act in full, and comparing its rates with those of the McKinley bill. This is the only complete and accurate comparison of the two laws. The pamphlet also contains the new income tax law, which congress ordered to take effect January 1, 1895. The new rates of duty have discouraged agriculture, lowered wages, decreased the revenue, and frightened employers. Every reflecting man will find, first in the threat of this legislation and next its actuality, the source of the hard times. 10 cents a copy. For sale at the BANNER TIMES office. d&w-tf

The treatment of the high school

it. Should Crawfordsville play a

Paris, Ill., school, one of which will probably be accepted.

Several new train schedules took effect yesterday, all for faster time.
The arrivals of such trains yesterday showed that it did not inconvenience them to make the new time. Twenty years ago had any person said regular or even special trains would make the run between Indianapolis and New York in twenty-two hours he would have been thought hardly of sound mind, yet both the Pennsylvania and the Vanderbilt lines make this time with seven to nine cars.

few minutes when he saw heavy clouds of smoke issuing from the lost everything else. His loss is estimated to be about $1500. He

The game was not very interesting, only DePauw acted as though she the crowd busy counting up the score. If we could have a game the whole thing, and the result was not a surprise to those who knew

He Lost His Job, but Made Sure of His Girl.

An actress who has toured in England told me a tale that I thought interesting. She said:

"In a play produced in the provinces there is a scene in which the hero strikes the villain, who slinks away without seeking to defend himself.

"One night in a large manufacturing town the young fellow who played the deep dyed scoundrel remarked to the leading man before the curtain rose:

"I say, old chap, I've got my fiancée out in front tonight with her father and mother. Now, of course they don't know anything about our business, and I'm afraid it would rather hurt me with them if I received a blow and got away in the usual cowardly fashion. So, dear old chap, can't you omit the blow to-night?"

"But, my boy, the management will fine me 2 shillings."

"Well, I'll pay the fine."

"Oh, yes, that's all very well for you. But what do I get out of it? Nothing but a bad name with the powers that be."

"Oh, well, I'll give you 2 shillings extra, or, better yet, you hit me as usual, and I'll hit back! They'll fine me, not you, and I'll give you the 2 shillings besides. You see how I'm situated. I shouldn't like the girl to mix me up with the character I play. Outsiders are so funny that way."

"So the compact was made, and that night when the hero cried, 'Sir Daniel Deepwater'—or something of that sort—'base offspring of a noble race, take that!' Sir Daniel not only 'took that,' but gave it back with such force that 'the pit rose at him,' including his relatives to be by marriage, and he walked off the stage in triumph.

"I am sorry to add he lost his situation, but he gained his point."—New York Recorder.

A DOG'S DISCOVERY

By CHARLES B. LEWIS (M. QUAD).

(Copyright, 1894, by Charles B. Lewis.)

From Tishomingo, on the Washita river, Indian Territory, to Atoka, on the Boggy river, is a distance of 60 miles and is covered by a stage line. There are now several towns between, but up to 1872 there was only one. If there were passengers for Fort Washita, the stages called there; if not, they kept to the main trail and left the fort several miles to the west.

Twenty miles out from Tishomingo the trail crossed No Man's creek, and half a mile to the east of this crossing there was, in the years 1868-9, a cabin known as Black Jim's place. Black Jim was known by reputation to all the stage drivers, to the officers at the fort and to cattlemen, and no one could say a good word for him. He was a half breed Indian, but instead of being half white, as is usually the case, he was darker than the average Indian and had all the craft and cunning of the red man and the boldness and desperation of an outlaw. His father was doubtless a full blooded negro, and a bad man at that.

SEIZED MY BLANKET IN HIS TEETH TO AROUSE ME.

With Black Jim lived two or three other men who were under suspicion, and while nothing had been actually proved against them it was generally believed they would not hesitate at any crime. If a scout, hunter or cattleman called at the cabin, he saw only two women about, both white, but the men were sometimes seen from a distance. On two occasions during the year 1868 the place was raided by cattlemen, but they did not find what they were looking after—stolen stock.

In the month of April, 1869, I made the journey from Atoka to Tishomingo on horseback. On this trip about a mile from the creek I met a gentleman named Atwell, from New Mexico, who was in the territory in the interests of a cattle syndicate. We talked for half an hour, and he told me he was going to call at Black Jim's cabin, with a view to buying out his squatter's rights. Ten days later Atwell was reported mysteriously missing. A search was instituted, which lasted for a week, and when I told of our meeting and his proposed visit to Black Jim's a party of 30 men rode straight to the cabin to make inquiries. We found the man and the two women at home. One of them claimed to be the wife of a white man named Bob Taylor, who was Black Jim's partner, but our questions of how they made a living were unanswered. There were three horses on the place, but no crops had been raised or any permanent improvement made.

While some of the crowd held the trio at bay others searched the cabin in hopes to find some trace of Atwell, but nothing was discovered. The only things found to add to the already unsavory reputation were several extra firearms, a large quantity of ammunition and some clothing which such people had no use for, but Black Jim begrudgingly explained that they were "traders" and had come by these things in a legitimate way.

The cabin was built of sods and poles and divided into three rooms—sitting room, kitchen and bedroom, and there were three beds in the garrets above. There was no floor in the rooms below, and the furniture and cooking utensils were of the poorest sort. As to Atwell, it was acknowledged that he had called and remained about half an hour, but as to what had become of him Black Jim had no idea. He was riding a fine horse and had a costly saddle, and as we could find nothing of these or the revolver with his name engraved on the stock we had no case against the suspected parties. Atwell's friends offered a reward of $500 for reliable information concerning him, but so far as anything has ever been heard to the contrary I was the last man to see him alive and report it.

While this search was still in progress another man mysteriously disappeared to add to the mystery and the excitement. A man named Tibbits, who was, I believe, from Boston, and who was a relative of the colonial commanding at the fort, made a western trip and paid the latter a visit of two or three weeks. He was a naturalist of some note, and when ready to leave he started out on foot and alone, planning to collect specimens by the way. As he had a plain trail to follow, there was no fear of his getting lost. Between the fort and the creek he was seen by seven or eight different people. The driver of a stage saw him sitting under a tree on the bank of the creek itself and waved his hand in salute. Tibbits did not reach Atoka, but as he was rather eccentric in his ways it was ten days before any one was alarmed about him. Then a search was begun by both civil and military authorities and maintained for weeks, but as in the other cases it amounted to nothing. It was generally believed that Black Jim had had a hand in the other cases, though not the slightest proof had been found, and when Tibbits disappeared a detachment of soldiers was sent to again overhaul the place.

On this occasion there were three men hanging about the place, and Black Jim was in such a temper that he made threats of what he would do if visited again. He refused his permission for a search, and in the struggle to disarm him he was shot in the right shoulder. From his demeanor it was believed that some incriminating evidence would be discovered, but the soldiers searched high and low and found nothing. The only suspicious thing was the discovery of about $900 in money, which was buried in a fruit can under the earthen floor. Black Jim and his gang were held in custody for a couple of weeks and then set at liberty to return home.

While they were in custody a stage driver named Winthrop talked pretty freely about the crowd, giving it as his opinion that they were a gang of murderers, and within a fortnight after their release this driver was shot dead from ambush in broad daylight within a mile of the creek. Everybody believed it to be the work of Black Jim, but as no proofs could be had nothing was done about it.

On the 18th of August I set out from Atoka in the interests of a land company which had planned to found a town on No Man's creek either above or below the stage route. The ground had to be looked over, its ownership ascertained and the project kept quiet until all was ready. For this reason I took nobody with me, though I had a splendid horse and was well armed. I was with the first party who raided Black Jim's place, but all subsequent happenings came to me through others. I knew that the gang were still on the ranch and likewise figured that I might run across some of them, and as I expected to camp out for several nights I took along my wolf dog as a companion and sentinel. I had owned the dog for several years, and a sharper, keener animal was not to be found anywhere.

After two days' prospecting below the highway crossing I went above it. Black Jim's land as well as all the land for miles around was like that of the plains, except that a good portion of it was covered with forest and thicket. Much of the ground was rocky and sterile, and here and there were gullies and ravines which heavy rains had washed out. Half a mile east of his cabin was a ravine which began at a tree clad hill and zigzagged for a mile or more till the waters flowing down it found the creek. At its deepest spot this ravine was 30 feet deep, and one riding along its banks could not see the bottom for the trees and bushes. I flanked this ravine as I went above the crossing, thus placing it between me and the cabin. I made my camp that night about a mile from Black Jim's cabin, and though I had not seen any of the gang since coming into the neighborhood I adopted all precautions to prevent a surprise. After I had used the fire to prepare supper I scattered it and moved my belongings about 20 rods away, while the horse was taken a distance of half a mile to be hobbled for the night.

When I turned in after a smoke, the dog was lying curled up at my feet. It was a bright moonlight night, and after a nap of three hours I awoke and looked at my watch and saw that it was exactly midnight. The dog had disappeared, and when I felt of the ground where he had been lying it was cold. This proved that he had been absent for some time. I lay down not at all worried about him and was just on the point of going to sleep again when he returned and seized my blanket in his teeth to arouse me. As I sat up he whined and moved away toward the gully and gave me to understand that he wished me to follow. I called him to me and ordered him to lie down, but after a minute he was up again and begging me to go along. I drew from the first that he had made some discovery, and to tell the truth I didn't relish the idea of following him. I had to wait a bit to get my nerve up, and when I did set out it was with such reluctance that the dog looked back at me as if he wondered where my courage had fled to.

He headed straight for the ravine, and the corner was almost a direct line with Black Jim's shanty. The animal gave no sign that prowlers were about, and I finally made up my mind that something was going on at the shanty which he wished me to know of. I was for climbing up the other bank of the ravine after our descent of the eastern bank, but he turned to the right and whined for me to follow. To my surprise, I found a pretty fair path through the tangle, and at a distance of about 200 feet from where we struck in the dog stopped in front of the mouth of a cave. It was dark down there among the trees and bushes, but when the dog stopped I struck a match and saw the opening of a cave before me. He entered, but for some time I refused to follow. By and by, all the time coaxed or upbraided by the dog, I followed him in. The opening was as large as a common door and the place perfectly dry, though during the spring rains it must have been flooded with water.

The moment I entered the cave the odor of decay saluted my nostrils, and I was pretty certain of the nature of the discovery in store for me. The light of a single match revealed all I wanted to see. On the floor of the cave, which was a chamber about 12 by 20 feet square, were two naked corpses of men, and the sight of them so upset me that my knees knocked together, and I had to clutch the rocks for support. This cave was not only known to the gang, but instead of burying the bodies of their victims in the neighborhood of the house they had brought them here. That the two corpses were those of Atwood and Tibbits I felt sure, though I lighted but one match and obtained only a brief look at the dead.

It was four or five minutes before I felt strong enough to set out on my return. The dog preceded me, and but for his caution I should have been added to the dead in the cave.

When within 30 feet of the spot where we had descended and must climb out, he uttered a growl of warning, and I heard the footsteps of men close at hand. I stepped from the path to the shelter of a boulder and had hardly crouched behind it when Black Jim and Bob Taylor passed me. Taylor led the way with a lantern, and Black Jim followed after with a burden on his back. The light of the lantern blinded me, but I believed the burden to be the body of a woman they were going to deposit in the cave.

When the pair had passed me, I made all haste to get out of the ravine and back to camp. As soon as I could catch up and saddle my horse I started for the fort with my news, and before 12 o'clock noon I was back in company with 30 soldiers. The orders were to capture the gang in the house dead or alive. We hoped to make a surprise, but in this we were defeated by the vigilance of the outlaws, who barricaded the doors and windows and fired upon us as we advanced.

You may have read how the affair ended, though the press made no sensation about it. There were three men and a woman in the cabin, and they elected to die fighting instead of on the gallows. The house was not bullet proof, and after an hour's firing, in which three of the soldiers were wounded, the last outlaw defender yielded up his life. The woman had used a rifle as well as the men, and each one had been wounded three or four times before receiving the fatal bullet.

In the cave we found not only the bodies of the two missing men, but that of one of the women who had lived in the house. She had been shot through the head, but for what reason no one knew. We also found considerable clothing, the watches of the murdered men and a lot of plunder from some emigrant wagon and in the garret of the house a great deal of other stuff. The fellows had not only pursued robbery as a trade, but had no doubt murdered other victims than those so queerly discovered by the dog. Had any escaped the soldiers' bullets they could have been convicted four times over.

The Smallest Inhabited Island.

The smallest inhabited island in the known world is that upon which the famous Eddystone lighthouse is situated. At time of low water this island is but 30 feet in diameter. At high tide the base of the lighthouse completely covers it. It lies nine miles off the Cornish coast and exactly 14 miles from the celebrated Plymouth breakwater.

It is inhabited throughout the year by three persons. Flattholme island, in the English channel, is another miniature inhabited island. It is only one-half mile in diameter, but is so rich in pasture that it supports a large family of farmers, an old man and his three grown sons. They have a fine farmhouse and the necessary outbuildings, and also care for the light, which is a revolving one in a lighthouse 156 feet above the level of the sea.

There are about 100,000 islands, great and small, scattered over the oceans, North America alone owning 5,500.—St. Louis Republic.

A Chinese Newspaper.

In Canton, by the way, is produced the only independent Chinese newspaper printed in the empire. Others printed in Hongkong, which is out of the jurisdiction of the emperor, sometimes criticize his majesty's government most severely and use terms which, if employed within his dominion, would probably result in the proprietors, the editor, the staff, the compositors, together with their families, being put to death, with various approved tortures and gradations of Tartar barbarity. I had a long interview with Mr. Kwong Ki Chiu, the proprietor and editor of the Kwong Pao (News of Canton), who initiated me into many of the details of Chinese newspaper publications. This paper has a daily circulation of over 3,000 and is posted to Chinamen in all parts of the world for a subscription of $8 yearly.—Florence O'Driscoll, M. P., in Century.

Sarah Was Not Acting.

A group of people were discussing Sarah Bernhardt with the usual gush and extravagance of praise: "I enjoy her on the stage as much as any one can," said one man in the party, "but I do wish I had never seen her anywhere else." The rest asked eagerly under what circumstances he had met the divine Sarah in private life. "It was at a hotel in Boston," he answered, laughing at the remembrance. "I happened to be passing her door just as she threw it open, ejecting some offending bellboy in wrath. I never heard such a torrent of billingsgate from a woman's lips. She was the vulgar, shrieking Frenchwoman, not the graceful, gifted actress. It was a revelation, I assure you, of the true Bernhardt whom we do not know of."—Philadelphia Press.

The Neat Housewife.

A very careful housewife is Mrs. Gratebar, neat and trim in everything always. Stray threads, scraps of paper, bits of cloth, find no rest upon her floors. She picks them all up, so keen is her love of neatness and order. Sometimes, however, she is thwarted in her designs, as when the other day in a room whose blinds were closed she tried to pick up a slender subbeam that had strayed through the slats to lie upon the floor, but as it moved farther west the great sun picked up the beam and took it along.—New York Sun.

ENVELOPES!

Well, now, it just occurred to us that you might need some envelopes and would not know where to buy them cheap. We have about 60,000 on hand at the present writing and more coming. We have a few odds and ends that will have to go at some price. Do you want to take advantage of a bargain? Then "come early and avoid the rush." You will want a little printing on them and we can do it to your satisfaction.

An Effective Warning.

The train was just ready to start for Boston when a detective from Superintendent Byrnes' office got on one of the smoking cars and said, "Be careful, gentlemen; I believe there are a couple of sharpers inside."

"Good gracious!" exclaimed a very stylish looking gentleman, preparing to get out. "I'd no idea there were such people here. I'm sure I shall get out."

Another, who was sitting in a seat opposite, exclaimed:

"I have a large sum of money with me, and I have no wish to lose it," whereupon he, too, got out.

"All right, gentlemen," the officer calmly remarked; "they are both gone now."—Millard J. Bloomer in Harlem Life.

Joseph Bonaparte.

Joseph Bonaparte fled to America after the hundred days and bought a little red brick house, where he lived in winter, and a mansion in New Jersey, where he passed his summers. He was much liked in this country, but could not make up his mind to stay here, so returned to Europe, hoping to profit by the changes of government in France. He was always disappointed and found himself an unwelcome guest in every country save England. He finally secured permission to live in Italy and died in Florence in 1844.—Exchange.

Taken and Taken.

She—I hate to have a photograph taken.

He—Well, you don't have to, do you?

She—How can I help myself? I left, it here on the table, and now it is gone.

He—Oh, ah!—Detroit Free Press.

No Difference.

Mrs. Secondwed—You are so unlike my first husband.

Mrs. S.—I hope the difference is in my favor, my dear.

Mrs. S.—Oh, it is, very much.

Mrs. S.—Thanks. What is it?

Mrs. S.—You're alive.—Newport Mercury.

The Indian name of the Schuylkill river was Manyunk; hence the name of a Pennsylvania town.
